

A Conversation with Bob Odenkirk

Thursday, March 3, 2022

12 p.m. Luncheon

$55++

Ticket includes copy of
Comedy, Comedy, Comedy, Drama

Before Bob Odenkirk became known as Saul Goodman, the shady lawyer he portrayed for over a decade across two fan-favorite award-winning series, Breaking Bad and Better Call Saul, the beloved actor, director, and comedian was a comedy writer from Naperville. Odenkirk comes to the clubhouse to discuss his hilarious, heartfelt new memoir, Comedy, Comedy, Comedy, Drama, the highs and lows of showbiz, his legendary cult status as a comedian, and what it's like to reinvent a showbiz career after fifty and scale new heights. Journalist Mark Caro joins Bob for a conversation tracing his entry into comedy to crafting sketches at Saturday Night Live, to his trailblazing sketch comedy show Mr. Show with David Cross, to his dramatic turns on AMC's Breaking Bad and Better Call Saul.

About Bob Odenkirk

Bob Odenkirk is an Emmy-winning writer and Golden Globe-nominated actor, comedian, director, and producer. He got his start in improv comedy in Chicago and wrote for Saturday Night Live. Odenkirk starred in AMC's Breaking Bad and Better Call Saul and co-created with David Cross the sketch comedy cult hit Mr. Show. He's written and produced a number of television shows, including Tim and Eric Awesome Show, Great Job!, and directed three films.

About Mark Caro

Mark Caro is creator and host of the Caropop podcast/website and writes for The New York Times, Chicago magazine (including the 2020 National City and Regional Magazine Awards' best profile winner) and other outlets after more than 25 years of covering culture at the Chicago Tribune. Mark is the author of The Special Counsel and The Foie Gras Wars. He created and hosted the "Mark Caro's Talking in Space" on-stage interview show and the "Is It Still Funny?" film series in Chicago.
